

AEL Heat Exchangers UK

AEL is a UK based company which was originally established in the early 1970's and became known for its pioneering work in energy conservation and heat recovery systems.

Who We Are

Since 1972 the core UK business product for AEL has changed direction a few times and is now firmly committed to being a market leader in the technical design and marketing of high quality Plate Heat Exchangers in association with global leaders Alfa Laval.

AEL Plate Heat Exchangers can be used for any standard or bespoke installation that requires fluid to be either cooled or heated instantaneously without the need for storage.

Quality really is of paramount importance to AEL therefore all our products are tested and manufactured in Europe and the UK to both European and UK quality standards where the manufacturing and performance of all our Plate Heat Exchangers are independently verified to maintain a high level of quality and accountability.
